

one fine day

MORGAN LENNOX & IAIN CHEYNE
24 SEPTEMBER, 2011
MODA RESTAURANT, BRISBANE, QLD

Morgan, 24, and Iain, 27, met on the Gold Coast. 'I'd just finished school and was celebrating with my friends and Iain had just finished his university exams and had headed to the Coast to celebrate. One of his friends knew mine and the rest is history,' says the bride. The couple said "I do" before 45 family and friends.

COSY AFFAIR 'We wanted our bridal party to be like the rest of the guest list – small and intimate,' explains the bride. 'So that meant we decided on one attendant each. Luckily I have only one sister and Iain has only one brother so those decisions were pretty easy.'

PERSONAL STYLE Morgan wore a simple white silk satin gown with lace detailing and cap sleeves, by designer Leonard Derecourt. 'It was the first designer I visited and the fourth dress I had tried on but I knew this was it. My sister, Courtney, said exactly what I was thinking – that it looked amazing and was exactly my style.'

stylist's tip...

Have your ceremony and reception at the same location for less travel and more party time.

For an organic, not-too-structured bouquet, hand tie the stems with minimal organza ribbon.

PRETTY TABLES Grey, purple and white were the colours of the reception, and Victoria from The Little White Wedding Company was hired to style. Grey tablecloths were used, 'to add depth and for something different to white', and a trio of vases adorned tables – a short rectangular vase held white hyacinths, a medium cylindrical vase purple freesias, while a large vintage crystal cut vase held white ranunculus. Guests could choose their main meal, while shared entrees and desserts 'meant that no-one got food envy,' says the bride.

FAVOUR FLAVOUR Morgan wanted edible favours – 'My favourites from other weddings have always been the ones I could eat.' Guests took home brownies from Dello Mano in one of three flavours – honey caramelised macadamia, Belgian chocolate and peanut butter.

PURPLE POWER 'I knew I wanted Iain in a grey suit as he looks amazing in grey but it took us a while to find the right shade in a style that suited him,' says Morgan. Iain's purple shirt was decided on quite late in the process. 'I have been on Iain since the start of our relationship to wear more colour and I thought why stick to a plain white shirt when he could wear purple – and look rather spiffy.'

UNIQUE VOWS 'It took me a long time to sit down and really think about what I wanted our ceremony to be like,' says Morgan. 'When I finally did, I just basically wrote the whole ceremony!' The couple also wrote their own vows – 'It was lovely to be able to say how much we mean to each other as it's something we don't always take the time to express.'
